Webinars to assist you

SMALL businesses need to be able to cope with the unexpected.

That is why Belmont Business Enterprise Centre (Belmont BEC) as part of the Small Business Advisory Services National Disaster Assistance (SBAS-NDA) program will be hosting online webinars throughout 2012 on the topic.

There will be a focus on cost control, efficiency, finance options, market research, customer service management and communication.

Manager of Belmont BEC Carol Hanlon said the Your Business from Disaster webinar would be complimentary to all small businesses that had suffered directly or indirectly from natural disasters.

"Small businesses are constantly facing situations in day to day business where they need to seek professional advice," she said.

"They don't necessarily know who to turn to, and help can sometimes be expensive."

The Belmont BEC is also one of 25 not-for-profit business advisory organisations that received Australian Government funding to assist small businesses affected by natural disasters.

Belmont BEC provides national assistance virtually through My Business Incubator, which delivers support via one-on-one telephone assistance, email, mentoring through web meetings and group training webinars.
